SMUGGLER ADMITS GUILT

'This Will Kill My Wife Back in Seattle,' Wails Prisoner Held for Attempting to Carry Contraband Drug to the Mainland

BEWAILS LOSS OF HIS HONOR IN OLD AGE

Method of Obtaining Opium Remains a Mystery About Which Neither the Arrested nor Authorities Will Talk—Believed to Have Bought Stuff from Stevedores

To live through seventy long years of probity and square dealing with his fellowmen; to marry; to rear a family of beautiful children and see them go out into the world bearing a name without taint; to weather life's storms strong hearted and bravely, coming down to the twilight years with reputation and honor; then, in those final few days to yield to temptation and become a felon in the sight of the law—such, according to his confession, this morning is the pitiful life-story of Samuel D. Hausman, of Seattle.

While living as a distinguished guest in the Alexander Young Hotel, one of Honolulu's best known hostleries, he was arrested yesterday evening by the federal authorities and nearly $5,000 worth of contraband opium found in his possession. Like a common thief, the handsome, silver-haired old man was bundled into the "black maria" of the police department and hustled off to the county jail where he spent the night in solitary confinement.

He was arrested on his seventieth birthday.

"It's the first and only offense I ever committed," quavered the prisoner, as he sat in the United States marshal's office this morning anxiously awaiting his interview with U. S. District Attorney Breckons.

"Will you kill my wife?" he asked. "I suppose the news of this will kill my wife up in Seattle. Well, I probably will mean two deaths. I can't live many days in that filthy, awful jail. And the disgrace is more than I can bear. I didn't sleep last night. Every minute was an hour, and every hour a month. I'll live the few remaining years in a few days."

"I don't know what made me do it. Certainly I took the opium. The details are unimportant. To think, that after all these years of integrity and honest dealing I should have fallen now, when so little of life is left! It breaks my heart."

"Certainly, I'll plead guilty. Why should I get a lawyer? The authorities got me, and I've saved them any further expense of trial."

"I can't explain why I did it. I guess it was merely the temptation—somebody found my price and paid it. If I had not been a novice I might have escaped. I knew a short time before Mr. Breckons and Collector E. R. Stackable came to room 89 at the Young Hotel that they were watching me. I had time to make a change. I could have taken another room and hidden the opium. Oh, there were a dozen ways of throwing them off the track at least temporarily, if I had been expert at that sort of thing. I knew that two detectives were watching my room, before they notified Breckons and Stackable. I knew when they went away, and when the latter two came I knew what they wanted. But I couldn't see or think of anything but my own guilt."

"That is why, when they came to the door, I opened it and asked them to come in and told them the opium was in the trunk."

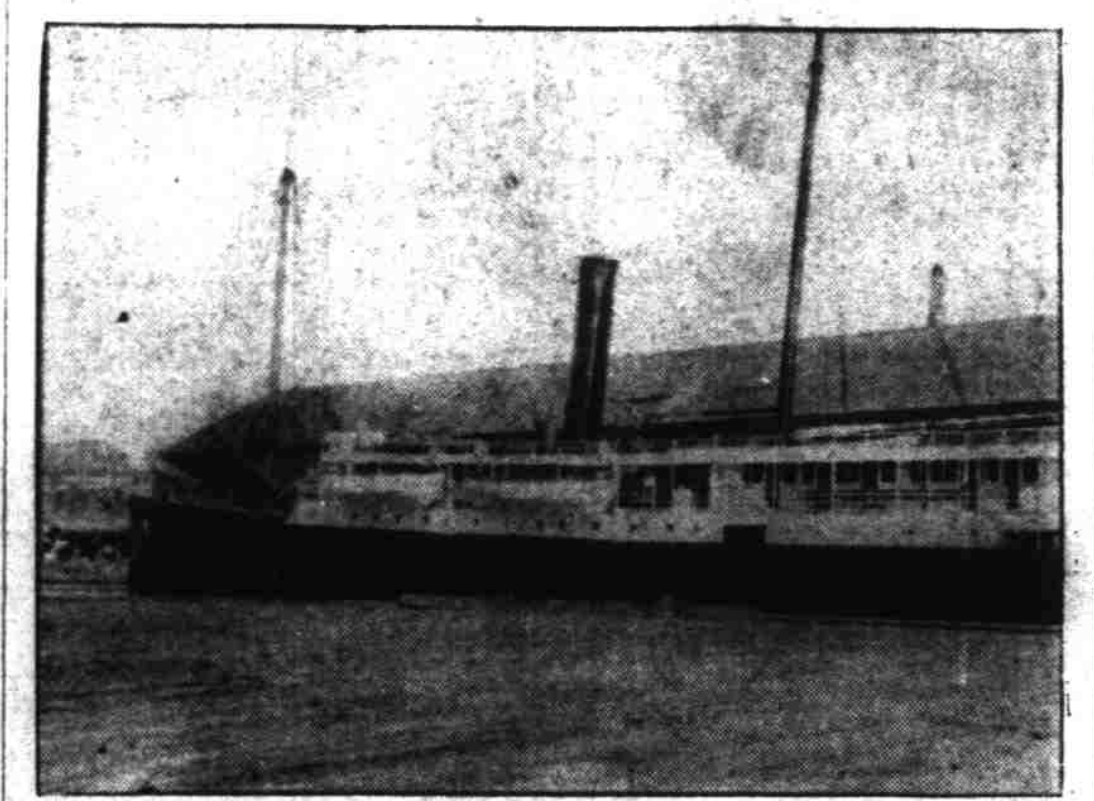

"What Will Children Think?"

"I wonder what my children will think—and my good friends, up in Seattle? I'm well known there. I have lived in Seattle for sixteen years. For three years I was with MacDougall & Southwick, the big dry goods firm. I left them and went into the real estate business and for the last thirteen years have been engaged in that, under the name of S. D. Hausman & Co., with offices at 506 New York block."

"I built up a good business and made good money. I came down here on the Sierra on her last trip, and had expected to return to the Coast with the same vessel today. My

MALIHINIS DISSATISFIED, DECLARE THE SKIPPERS

Attorneys for the Harbor Authority for Statement That New-comers Have Resolved to Leave Steamer Kilauea, Which Is Denied by the Officials of the Company as 'Without Foundation'

"We signed on with the Inter-Island as officers and not as stevedores." Such is the statement credited to the new officers of the Inter-Island packet Kilauea by Attorney Ashford, counsel for the local harbor of masters and mates, in speaking of the situation at noon today. He added: "We are going to win hands down in this fight. Watch our smoke."

According to the same authority reports from the representatives of the harbor in Hilo on the situation there are to the effect that the newly added officers have not been as satisfactory as expected, largely because of their inexperience in the difficulties of local navigation. The same reports declare that while there the officers of the Kilauea declared their intention of leaving the ship as soon as she reached this port. Mr. Ashford asserted this morning that they had done this, immediately after the ship berthed.

At the office of the Inter-Island company, however, the assertion was met with the statement that everything is "progressing smoothly, and we have no cause for complaint. Shipments are going forward steadily and the talk of dissatisfaction on the part of the new men is absurd."

This does not, however, appear to check the optimism of the captains and mates. More than a dozen of them were seen by representatives of the Star-Bulletin this morning and repeated the story of dissatisfaction among the malihinis, and the assertion that few if any of the later will stick to their new jobs.

It is known that at least one of the new comers has informed the harbor that he wishes to return to the mainland as soon as possible, letters to that effect having been received by Secretary Poor, of the harbor, it is asserted that several others have failed to look with approval upon the conditions of work down here and are making arrangements to quit. This is emphatically denied by representatives of the company, who insist that had any dissatisfaction arisen they would have been the first to learn of it.

Company officials also deny the report current on the streets this morning that the Inter-Island steamer Kilauea scraped the reefs off Kawaiahae on her last run and will have to be sent to the marine railroad. The story was

BAFFLING 'MIKAHALA MYSTERY' CLEARED AWAY THIS MORNING

The great "Mikahala Mystery" that appeared to baffle the understanding of a certain clique of local waterfronters yesterday has been dissipated like mist before a morning sun.

The Inter-Island steamer Mikahala, on the Maui and Molokai run, made a quick dash into Honolulu Thursday night, remained here for perhaps an hour, and then steamed for her regular ports at an early hour Friday morning, leaving in her wake a little delegation of much surprised shipping men, who at once came to the conclusion that the so-called strike had assumed a most serious attitude.

The Mikahala made a special trip to Honolulu on Thursday for the sole purpose of bringing Mrs. J. McCarrison of Molokai to the bedside of her daughter, Mrs. John Lucas, who was obliged to go under a serious operation at Queen's Hospital, because of intestinal trouble.

Mrs. Lucas was pronounced by her physicians as in an extremely critical condition. At a consultation of the members of the family, it was decided that the mother and other members of the family be summoned to Honolulu as quickly as possible.

characterized as a "vicious lie" and as being "without any foundation at all." Judge Humphreys issued another one of his pyrotechnic statements this morning, in which he declared that the captains are going to win. He said: "This fight is not finished by a long shot. We are not going to use either bludgeons or brass knuckles, but we are going to win; people who think otherwise are without any knowledge of our resources. We have long since abandoned all hope of being treated fairly, either as a harbor or as individuals. To expect fair treatment from that crowd is like expecting a sweet odor from a sewer. I want to say, however, that it will not be long before the Inter-Island's new pastry cook is chasing a job in a bakery. If any one else understands what that refers to, let them ask Captain Aliman. He'll know."

No Trouble at Hilo. [Special Star-Bulletin Correspondence.]

HILO, T. H., Feb. 7.—From the manner in which the strike against the Inter-Island Steam Navigation Company is progressing at the present time, it appears practically certain that the captains who resigned are defeated and that the company has the situation well in hand. There has been on strike on the local vessels, whatever, and they have been worked along as if there had been no difficulty. Yesterday it was rumored that a change in the command of the Kilauea was caused by the strike, but this is denied by Manager McKay of the company, who says that the change was one which had been contemplated before the troubles came up. In this case Captain Self has been instructed to report at Honolulu for orders, it being rumored that he will take command of the Maui. Mate Mayne, who has been with the company for some time past, takes the Kilauea.

When the Kilauea arrived yesterday morning, taking the place of the Mauna Kea, which is being laid up to have her boilers cleaned as is customary every few months, Captain Freeman was in charge, but all three mates under him were strangers, being men who had been brought from the mainland by President Kennedy. First Officer Berg, who is very well known and liked here, was among the members of Harbor 54 to tender his entire militia company in jail.

An entire company of the National Guard of Hawaii is now in jail, at Lahaina, Maui.

However, this is nothing against officers and men, but rather something that should go on the credit side of the ledger, for they are occupying quarters in the county hotel of their own volition, and because they are a game lot of men. In short, the Lahaina company, N. G. H. has for years past been using two cells of the county jail for an armory.

Relief is at hand for Lahaina and a good one at that. Next Monday the superintendent of public works will open tenders for the construction of the new armory, and work will be rushed as fast as the law and the labor situation allows, to get the citizen-soldiers decently housed, and reward them for the faithful performance of duty in the face of every discouragement and adverse condition.

Ten thousand dollars is available for the armory, and to judge by plans, the Lahaina men will be well fixed when the building is completed. The hall will be 120 x 60 feet, and besides a company room with lockers for the men, there will be a concrete storage room for the safekeeping of property. There will be a raised stage at one end of the hall, shut off by sliding doors instead of a curtain, so that under ordinary conditions it can be used as a reading and club room for the men. In the near future it is hoped that billiard and pool tables can be set up there as part of the social equipment of the organization.

The lot on which the new armory is to be built is on the beach road, centrally located, and it is expected that as a social hall for entertainments of all sorts, it will be much in demand. It is near enough to the beach to give the men bathing facilities of the best.

CABLE ORDER FOR ISLAND DEPARTMENT

Rumor Funston to Command Is Confirmed by Cable to Headquarters Today

Long-expected orders organizing the Department of Hawaii arrived at army headquarters here this afternoon at 1:30 o'clock.

Col. McGunnagle received a cablegram to the effect that under general orders No. 9, the war department has created a new Hawaiian department and First Hawaiian brigade, the latter to be composed of the First Infantry, Second Infantry and the Twenty-fifth Infantry. The new orders take effect February 15. Brigadier General Frederick Funston has been assigned to take command of the department and Gen. M. M. Macomb to take command of the brigade. Gen. Macomb, upon arrival here, will proceed as soon as possible with the organization of the department and the brigade pending the arrival of Brigadier General Funston.

LAST MAHUKA CASE MAY BE A SHORT ONE

E. O. Hall & Son Hearing May Be Ended Monday, Thinks Mr. Breckons

The last Mahuka site condemnation suit probably will be tried and finished Monday and the long list of hearings to determine the value that shall be paid by the federal government for its building site on Fort street will come to an end.

U. S. District Attorney Breckons said this morning that the final case, to determine the amount of damages that shall be paid E. O. Hall & Son, occupants of the building at Fort and King streets, is not expected to occupy more than one day. It is set for hearing Monday, and his confidence in the brevity of the hearing is so strong that a number of other cases have been set for hearing on the following day.

The total awards to owner and lessees in previous cases is $390,290.82.

MONEY TRUST PROBE MAY KILL WILLIAM ROCKEFELLER

BRUNSWICK, N. J., Feb. 8.—The hearing forced upon William Rockefeller by the "money trust" investigating committee yesterday may kill the Standard Oil magnate. Mr. Rockefeller is today reported by his physicians to be seriously ill. The questioning by Chairman Pojo of the committee and its attorney, Samuel Untermyer, was ended suddenly when Rockefeller's throat trouble almost sent him into spasms.

SOLDIER WANTED IN HONOLULU ESCAPES FROM HIS ARMY GUARDS

Herbert Glidewell, private of Company I, arrested at San Francisco and wanted here on a charge of seduction, has escaped from the army officers who had him in charge on the coast, and the civil authorities throughout the length of the coast have been notified to watch for him.

NEW INDUSTRY; SEND YOUR COCOANUTS BY PARCEL POST

Inspector Harry B. Hall of the San Francisco postoffice division and in charge of the Hawaiian offices, said this morning that he has started a new industry here.

Inspector Hall left on the Sierra and a lot of mail-bags carried by that vessel lugged suspiciously. "That's because of the new industry I've started," said Hall, and he went on to explain what the industry is.

"Take a big fine cocoanut, paint on it the alleged likeness of a friend of yours on the mainland, his or her address and then stick on some parcel post stamps and send the cocoanut through the parcel post. I've sent so many that they had to hunt up cocoanuts for me. Every person I happened to mention this to also went and got cocoanuts and did likewise."

Inspector Hall picked out the biggest and fattest cocoanut he could find and sent it to Postmaster-General Hitchcock. He was asked why he didn't send a plump one to Taft, but he smiled and remarked that he isn't "staring anything."

PROMOTION COMMITTEE PLANS FOR CLEVELANDERS ARE NOW COMPLETE

Definite plans for the reception of the Cleveland tourists were perfected at the regular meeting of the promotion committee which was held at half-past three o'clock yesterday afternoon in the rooms of the Merchants' Association. The last reception which the promotion committee tendered the globe-trotting tourists was a pronounced success and, according to the plans decided upon at the meeting, the reception next Wednesday morning will leave a favorable impression of Honolulu stamped upon the minds of the passengers.

According to the latest reports the big liner will arrive off port early Wednesday morning, and will be met by the promotion committee launch in which will be Secretary Wood, possibly Mayor Fern, and a number of Hawaiian girls, who will board the vessel and distribute leis among the five hundred passengers. The two days that the vessel will remain in Honolulu will provide ample time for the passengers to see the island, and in addition to this a long list of entertainments has been prepared. On the evening of the arrival of the liner Malini, the man who has mystified the Cleveland passengers for the past two days, will be included in the itinerary. During the stay of the Cleveland in Honolulu the officers of the promotion committee will be fitted up with tables and writing material for the convenience of the tourists, and an extra supply of island literature will be on hand. A large number of the tourists are California people, many of whom have friends in Honolulu and who will be anxious to renew old acquaintances. The vessel will remain here two days and will leave on the evening of February 13th.

KING LEADS SCUTARI FIGHT

Monarch Heads Attacking Column of the Allies Which Captures the Advanced Positions of the Turks and Drives Back Upon the Inner Defenses of the City

'SCUTARI MUST BE OURS' IS COMMAND OF NICHOLAS

He Personally Directs the Batteries of Heavy Artillery Which Silence Ottoman Cannon and Sink Two Gunboats Out on the Famous Lake of Scutari

Loss of Mussulman Troops, Declare Reports Received from Berlin

(Associated Press) SOFIA, Bulgaria, Feb. 8.—Disaster from the front of the Montenegrin and Serbian lines at Scutari and a desperate battle in front of the alleged city, in which King Nicholas, the aged monarch of the little mountain kingdom of Montenegro, displayed valor worthy of the old days of crusaders, personally leading his men and allies into the fight.

The battle started early this morning and lasted until well on into the afternoon, when the allies succeeded in driving back the man forces until they rested at the inner line of defense around the city, which apparently is now deserted.

Led by Nicholas, the soldier-journalist-statesman of Montenegro, the mountaineers of that little country pressed forward against every position held by the Turks, and in frantic rushes drove the enemy back. Nor were the Serbians far behind. The dispatches declare that the Serbians backed up the allies in every respect and heavily in the attack on the strongly fortified positions of the Mussulmans.

Late in the morning King Nicholas, seeing the need of silencing the batteries which were working havoc on his lines, as well as destroying, if possible, two Turkish gunboats out on the lake of Scutari, personally directed the fire of a number of siege guns against the batteries, and when they were silenced effectively, ordered the fire of his cannon until the gunboats were seen to be enveloped in smoke and sinking.

CUT OFF SUPPLIES

LONDON, Feb. 8.—It was announced here today that bankers of European countries have decided that in future they will not furnish supplies of money to the combatants in the Balkan war. In this way they hope to bring hostilities to an end.

SUFFRAGETTES RUIN FAMOUS LONDON GARDENS

LONDON, Feb. 8.—Suffragettes today entered the famous Kew Gardens and in a short time had done thousands of dollars worth of damage, besides destroying orchids which will be most difficult to replace. The attack on the flowers of the Kew Gardens was but a part of a general campaign begun today. In the northern districts the suffragettes continued their window smashing program and they cut the telegraph wires between this city and the northern shires, seriously hampering communications.
